I urge everyone to support the development of the Centre. It could only serve to improve the lives of the people living here'.

Upon completion the new Osmani Centre will boast a community cafe, active studio, youth gym, youth club, education and employment, meeting room, training room, as well as a multi-purpose hall and roof garden.

The Executive Mayor of Tower Hamlets, Lutfur Rahman, also came to show his support: 'I know the fantastic work they do to take people off the streets, to develop the skills and capacity of local people. That is why I have and continue to support Osmani Trust and the building of a new community centre', said the Mayor of Tower Hamlets.

Accompanying the Mayors were business leaders from the City of London and Canary Wharf as well as Stephen O' Brien, Chairman of the Barts and the London NHS Trust, and Sir Trevor Chinn, Chairman of the Mayor's Fund for London, who showed keen interest in the work of the Trust and a willingness to contribute to the development of young people and the local community.

The Lord Mayor and Stephen O' Brien have agreed to become the patrons of the new centre.

Summer of Fun

The YCHP delivered a four weeks summer project from Osmani Centre. The programme had a variety of structured activities and training programmes to meet the needs and demands of the user group. These included the accredited young leader's award course, workshop on young parenting, conflict mediation, and a 3 day residential to Kent.

The activities and workshops were designed through user consultation with emphasis on developing the capacity and skills of young people as well as to generally motivate the youth to continue to access youth services on a more regular basis.

The youth workers engaged well with the young people to meet specific needs, such as low confidence, self esteem, knowledge, awareness and leadership skills. Much focus was also put on to re-engage young people into education and develop their employability opportunities.

Furthermore young women were able to build new relationships with members they met at the programme aiding their social development.

Job fair pulls hundreds

ON WEDNESDAY 3rd November 2010, the Training and Employment Fair witnessed over 200 eager visitors to the Osmani Centre. The Fair is an annual event organised to offer the community at large first hand contact between potential employers and those seeking employment, the fair also provides opportunities for those seeking training or qualifications to up-skill themselves in order to find pathways to employment.

Forhad Hussain, 23 stated his experience with the following words,

"This Fair is really beneficial, jobs are difficult to come by these days due to the recession and you find many that are available are unsuitable. This Fair however lets us speak directly with those holding vacancies and with that you can then tell if the post is suitable and whether to apply for such roles. This saves both time and disappointment."

On the day several providers attended hosting information desks and stalls comprising of live vacancies in administration and customer service, training in fields of media, security and housing. Several providers that attended on the day included the Census, Skills Match, NHS, Recruitment R Us, Working Links, Tower Hamlets Council and many others.

Quit for Life

OSMANI Trust Health Trainers team took great strides to engage with the local Muslim community during this year's 'Quit for Ramadan, Quit for Life' smoke cessation campaign. The culmination of this was a local media campaign, which supported targeted outreach within the local mosques and within community settings such as the Idea Store. Community specific outreach sessions covered promotion of the stop smoking service, raising awareness of the harm caused by tobacco use and encouraging people to stop smoking as part of their spiritual living.

The sessions provided valuable insights into the community and their engagement with health services. It was found that the majority of people were unaware of the Stop Smoking Services. At the same time stronger links were cemented between the Health Trainers team and the mosque leaders.

As a result of the Ramadan campaign, 23 people were supported to give up smoking and many more are on the list receiving advice and are on the verge of quitting. Since the campaign, the local mosques have committed to further health promotion activity with the Health Trainers including holding weekly stalls on a Wednesday during midday prayers in order to recruit more local residents mainly from the Muslim community.

The Health Trainers are now planning towards the 'New Years' smoke cessation campaign which will come into effect during the Christmas and new year's period. More community outreach sessions will be held from key locations such as the Whitechapel market, Idea Store, Sainsbury's, one stop shop etc. The aim of the campaign is to encourage local residents and visitors of Tower Hamlets to make 2011 a smoke free year.

STAFF AND VOLUNTEERS TRAINING

In September 2010, 19 members, staff and volunteers completed a full day of training on Child Protection and Emergency First Aid. Shaathi works with vulnerable children and young people and it is paramount to the safety and wellbeing of the clients as well as the staff and volunteers to be informed, aware and trained on how to protect themselves as well as their clients. These 2 courses have now become compulsory training for all volunteer mentors wishing to mentor for Shaathi Mentoring Programme.

The Child Protection Training enabled participants to develop awareness and understanding of safeguarding and child protection processes and relate these to their role and responsibilities within the project

ACTIVE BOYS TO ACTIVITY CENTRE:

The boys visited Stubbers Adventure Centre in August to participate on a number of outdoor activities including Jet Skiing, Banana Ride, Raft Building and Kayaking. All the participants enjoyed themselves very much and look forward to the next outdoor activity excursion.

GIRLS ON KARTS: The Girls visited Revolution Karting in Mile End where they spent the day racing and trying to beat each other. For some, it was their first group session and had the opportunity to meet the staff, some of the volunteers and other young people on the programme. All-in-all, it was a great success as children and young people shared their experiences, ideas, thoughts and had the opportunity to further bond with the allocated mentors.

Aasha @ Gambia

In June 2010, a group of young people from Aasha took part in a life changing residential to the Smiling Coast of West Africa, The Gambia. The week long residential experience brought three groups of youth from differing backgrounds together. Their aim was to inspire young people from different territorial backgrounds to be all they could be; to awaken a sense of belonging and purpose, and to feel part of a global community that works together to make a difference. During their visit to The Gambia they took in many wonderful and inspirational experiences.

VISIT TO THE GAMBIAN NATIONAL YOUTH AND SPORTS COUNCILS

Set inside the National Stadium, the Youth Council and the Sports Council both hosted the visit of the Aasha Project. Although they may not have the same level of technology, building infrastructure or presentation as some organisations in London, they had great dedication, warmth and vision for the youth of their country.

A FRIENDLY MATCH WITH THE GAMBIAN GOVERNMENT

The two state departments of Youth and Sports Council put together an all-star 'Government Team' that played the youth of Aasha in the heat of the Gambian sun. The Aasha youngsters took control of the game from early on and scored the first goal to take the lead within ten minutes. Unfortunately, it was all downhill from that point onwards! The 'Government Team' played it careful defending aggressively. As time elapsed, the heat had its effect on the western lungs of the Aasha team and one by one players had to be substituted as they ran flat out of energy. In the end, the match ended 4-2 to the Gambian team but everyone was in high spirits. Wait until they come to Tower Hamlets!

VISIT OF A GRASS-ROOTS YOUTH PROJECT

Save the Youth Action Group was set up by a former policeman who was affected by seeing people suffering from the effects of drugs, crime and poor circumstances. He set up this project that now works with a huge number of young and old to support people and help them to change their world. Aasha was met with a beautiful display of cultural song and activities, welcoming them into the village. It seemed as though the entire village had assembled to greet the visitors including young people, mothers and children as well as the elders.

One of the young people mentioned how the journey affected him: "I did not know the value of money until I came to Gambia. For example on the fourth day we went to a local school and there were about 30 students. The teacher told us that they pay 50 dalasi a month which is just over a pound! However, still the parents of those children can't pay for some months."

Aasha will be developing partnership with Save the Youth Action Group amongst others so that a twinning process can take place that will provide even more inspirational experiences.

QPR Trials for 3 talented boys

In early August of this year Sporting Equals in partnership with Queens Park Rangers Community Trust started a football talent ID programme for boys aged 8-11 years old. 10 young footballers from FITC represented the project at the three day trials held at the QPR training ground in Middlesex.

Out of the ten young players, three impressed the QPR coaches and have been invited to the Centre of Excellence to further develop their techniques and athleticism. Amir Hamza, Mohammed Lemon and Usamah Amin have all been involved with the FITC project for a year now.

All three were extremely happy with their achievements, Mohammed Lemon said, "I am so excited about going training with the QPR Centre of Excellence; I hope I can do well."

40 young people, staff and volunteers joined military units, marching bands, businesses and other community groups marched through the City of London and be a part of the exciting atmosphere and a part of history.

The partnership between Osmani Trust and CB Richard Ellis will continue to grow over the next few months as the global company help plan to raise money for the new Osmani Centre. CB Richard Ellis is planning a cycle ride from London to Amsterdam later in the year and part of the money raised will be donated to Osmani Trust.

Great Wall of China 2010

ON 10TH OCTOBER 2010 two intrepid adventurers entered into the unknown. Over the next week or so their mission was to trek the Great Wall of China. For the last 12 months Abu Hasanath and Muhammad Didar had worked tirelessly to raise in excess of £10,000 for the new Osmani Centre. This was coupled with intense training and preparation for trekking the Great Wall itself. Not knowing what to expect, they embarked on a journey with a determined mind not to let down their much appreciated supporters and well wishers. After ten days of trekking they returned home with tales of adventure and glory.

DAY 1: Set off with Turkish Airlines on an overnight flight from London Heathrow to Beijing. Had plenty of time to meet the other trekkers from all over the country who raised money for various worthwhile causes.

DAY 2: Arrived in Beijing, and then another 2 hours on the coach to reach accommodation! Once we reached the accommodation, we acclimatised for a couple of hours and then had dinner with chopsticks!...

Okay, we actually used a knife and fork, but we both tried the chopsticks, really! Classic Tours ended the night by telling us more about the week ahead.

DAY 3: We climbed the GREAT WALL AT SIMATAI, which was about 4-5 hours of trekking. It was a short and sharp day and was an amazing start to the Challenge, and that's Challenge with a big 'C'! It had very steep sections and over 1200 steps, but of course, this was just the beginning!

DAY 4: We climbed the GREAT WALL AT JINSHANLING, which was about 6 - 7 hours trekking. This section of the wall has unusual features such as "obstacle walls". We trekked through a series of watchtowers, of which some sections had larger and steeper steps than the day before.

DAY 5: We climbed the GREAT WALL AT GUBEIKOU, which was about 5 - 6 hours trekking. It was the most challenging day along one of the least visited parts of the wall, and had spectacular views. We also trekked along the wall which sweeps over the Yanshan mountains.

DAY 6: We took a trip to the BLACK DRAGON PAW PARK, and no, it wasn't a social visit! It required about 6 - 7 hours of walking along the shallow valley, over a ridge, and into Black Dragon Paw Park itself. After lunch, only the bravest and the fittest (yes, we both fell into that category) headed uphill to the tallest single tower on this section of the wall. Imagine running uphill through prickly bushes and muddy terrain for 45 minutes...yes I know, you're probably feeling proud of sponsoring us...we felt proud too!!

DAY 7: Final day of trekking in the GREAT WALL AT MUTIANYU, which started before sunrise and was another 4 - 5 hours of trekking. It was a challenging climb to reach the wall, but it was well worth it to see the sun rise and for some stunning views. Whilst everyone else celebrated with champagne at the finish line, both Hasanath and I stuck to orange juice, and took photographs. Feeling joy at completing the trek, the best was saved for the evening...a Chinese foot massage!! Yep, I'm going back for that one!

DAY 8: Did a bit of shopping for the missus before going for another Chinese massage. (Couldn't wait until the next time we come to China). Hasanath complimented on my supreme skills in getting a bargain. After half a day the stallholders knew me by my first name.

DAY 9: Boarded the plane from Beijing back to London and home sweet home!!

Gala Awards

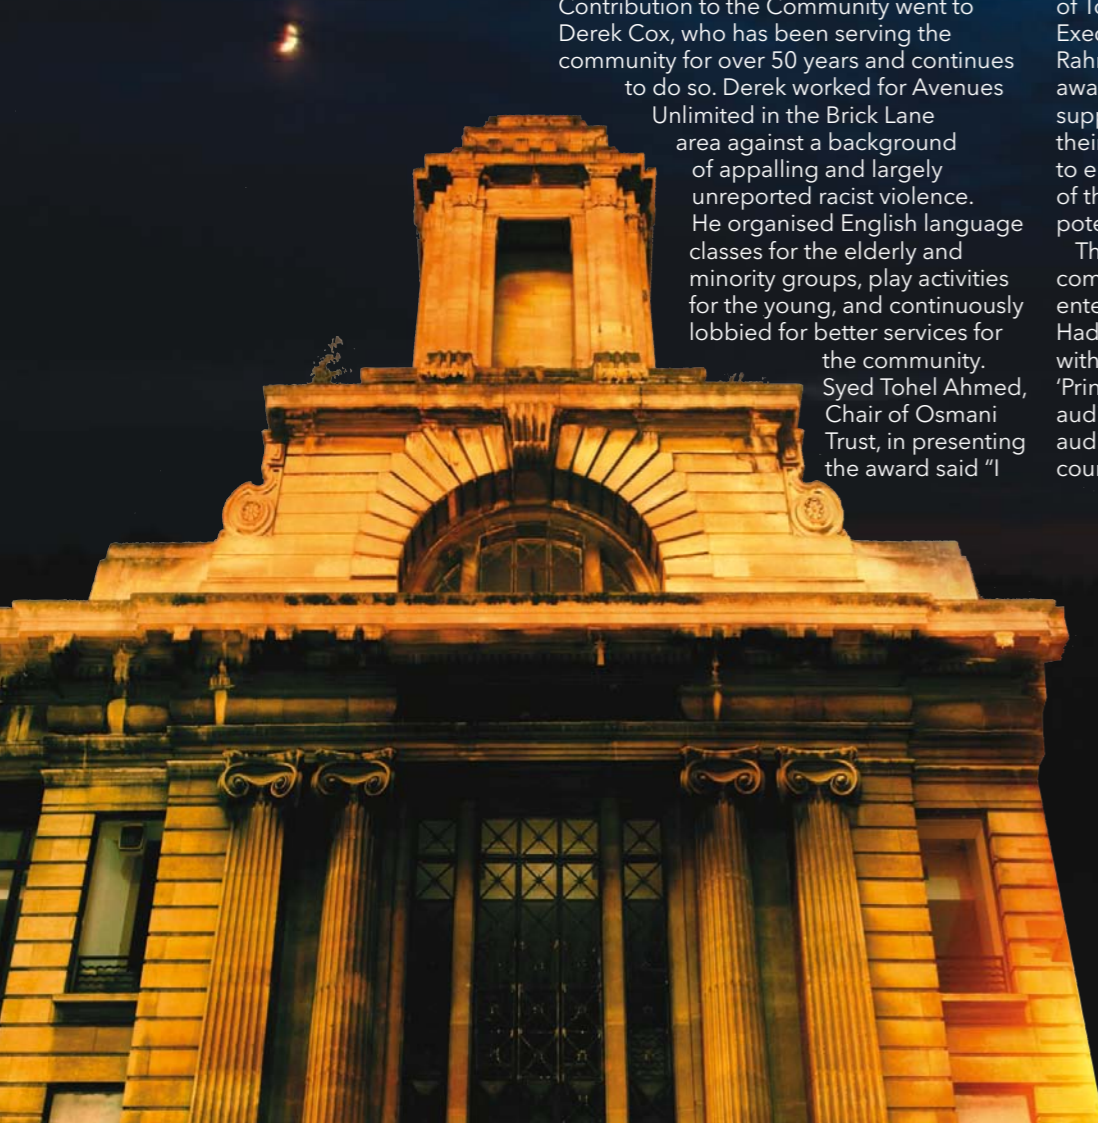

ON WEDNESDAY 24 November 2010 over 500 people attended the Osmani Trust Gala Awards held at the Waterlilly, Whitechapel. This annual event recognised the commitment, dedication and hard work of local people who work towards making a difference in their lives and the lives of others.

A total of 22 awards were given out on the night. The award for Outstanding Contribution to the Community went to Derek Cox, who has been serving the community for over 50 years and continues to do so. Derek worked for Avenues Unlimited in the Brick Lane area against a background of appalling and largely unreported racist violence. He organised English language classes for the elderly and minority groups, play activities for the young, and continuously lobbied for better services for the community. Syed Tohel Ahmed, Chair of Osmani Trust, in presenting the award said "I have known Derek since I can remember; he has always been at the service of the community. He is an inspiration to us all".

The Gala was attended by notable guests including Chris Lovitt, Associate Director of Public Health, Tower Hamlets NHS; Arun Kang, CEO of Sporting Equals; Isobel Cattermole, Director for Childrens, Schools and Families, London Borough of Tower Hamlets; Cllr Ohid Ahmed, Deputy Mayor of Tower Hamlets, and Lutfur Rahman, Executive Mayor of Tower Hamlets. Mayor Rahman praised the achievements of the award winners, and then emphasised the support of the council for young people and their determination to put in the resources to enable young people and other members of the community to achieve their full potential.

The awards presentations were complemented with light hearted entertainment, including a performance by Hadri Taekwondo that almost raised the roof with applause. Also on show was comedian 'Prince Abdi', who was a total hit and left the audience wanting more. The appetite of the audience was eventually satiated with a 3 course dinner that ended the day.

We must respond to the construction skills needs in the industry and make sure that our training provision is of the highest quality for all our employees. Our reputations depend upon the ability of our staff and it is imperative that we attract good people and give them the training they need to be able to do their jobs efficiently, effectively and safely.
